Tyler advises institutional investors, including insurance companies, finance companies, and banks on diverse financing transactions, with a particular emphasis on domestic and cross-border private placements of debt securities. He also represents middle-market lenders in secured and unsecured credit facilities for private equity funds and their portfolio companies. Tyler's experience spans a number of industries, including REITs, public utilities, electric cooperatives, transportation, higher education, and general corporate finance.

Previous Work

Before joining ArentFox Schiff, Tyler was an associate in the Corporate Group of a prominent New York City law firm. He represented financial institutions, institutional investors, and public companies in structuring and negotiating a broad range of finance and corporate matters, including asset-based loans, securitizations, institutional investments in FinTech platforms, and private middle-market mergers and acquisitions.
