Mike helps clients proactively evaluate and litigate complex environmental, public policy, and energy disputes. His work centers on protecting enterprise value and mitigating companies' financial and reputational risks, from investigating and resolving Superfund liability to counseling on climate and energy policy. As a partner in both the Complex Litigation and Environmental practices, Mike serves as a strategic advisor to clients across the energy, manufacturing, government, real estate, and financial sectors.

Experience & Practice Areas

Mike focuses on identifying and deploying effective solutions to clients' legal and business challenges. He provides strategic counsel for leaders who face complex environmental and regulatory risks.

Strategic and Litigation Counsel for Business Leaders

Corporate Risk Management & Regulatory Litigation: Advises clients on litigation and enforcement actions related to the Clean Air Act, Clean Water Act, the Toxic Substances Control Act, and other federal and state environmental statutes, navigating complex regulatory landscapes in ways advantageous to each client.

Superfund & Remediation Strategy: Manages all aspects of Superfund-related matters, from negotiation with federal regulators to cost recovery litigation, including managing long-term legal exposure at high-profile and technically complex sites.

Sustainability, ESG, & Emerging Contaminants: Counsels companies and their boards on emerging issues like PFAS litigation, chemical regulation, carbon capture sequestration, and ESG compliance, understanding the legal and political risks that can impact business operations and investment decisions. Interfaces with federal, state, and local policymakers.

Business Litigation: Manages all aspects of tort and commercial litigation from pre-litigation claims analysis and document preservation and collection through resolution of claims through mediation, trial, and/or appeal. Mike has represented clients in litigation and arbitration in venues across the United States.

Infrastructure Development: Assess need for permits and approvals needed for the construction of manufacturing facilities, power generation and transmission, and public infrastructure and provide counsel regarding real estate issues including eminent domain and obtaining certificates from the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) for authority to operate as common carrier pipelines.

Advising Corporate Boards and High-Level Leaders

Mike also counsels corporate boards, executives, and non-governmental organizations on the legal and reputational risks associated with their operations. His beginnings in a West Virginia steel town provide him with a unique perspective on how to balance economic growth with community needs. Over time, Mike has advised corporate leaders on questions ranging from energy to employment, and corporate governance to sustainability. He has extensive experience distilling complex legal facts into compelling arguments that carry weight with both courts and the broader communities where clients operate.

Commitment to Pro Bono Service

Mike is deeply committed to pro bono work, particularly matters of significant public interest and civil rights. Mike's pro bono work uses the same creative toolkit he uses for corporate clients in the public sphere.

Mike's significant pro bono engagements include

- Protecting Constitutional Rights: Serving as trial and appellate counsel in a civil rights case that challenged restrictive voting laws. Mike also secured the First Amendment rights of non-religious individuals to perform marriages in Illinois and Michigan through federal litigation.
- Influencing High-Stakes Litigation: Filing an amicus brief at the U.S. Supreme Court on behalf of a U.S. Senator regarding state laws that limit content moderation on internet platforms. Mike also filed an amicus brief in the Fourth Circuit on behalf of national health and disability rights organizations, leading to the overturning of a lower court decision that had barred institutional reform litigation related to West Virginia's foster care system.
- Driving Legislative Change: Challenging Michigan's assessment of state sales and use taxes on feminine hygiene products. This litigation ultimately led to the Michigan legislature repealing the tax.
- Advocating for the Vulnerable: Representing classes of foster children in litigation against the Illinois Department of Children & Family Services and the State of Illinois on issues ranging from child welfare to securing the ability of same-sex couples to become foster parents. Mike has also challenged religious discrimination and unconstitutional conditions of confinement on behalf of incarcerated persons, as well as assisted immigrants seeking asylum and similar relief in the immigration system.
- Blending Litigation with Public Advocacy: After securing a judgment against a con artist who defrauded flea market vendors in multiple states, Mike coordinated with law enforcement and the media to ensure public awareness. This approach led to the con artist's eventual incarceration for unrelated crimes, effectively ending his multi-state spree of preying on immigrant communities.
